Geek War (2010) (DVD Review)

Directed By: Chris Seaver

Starring: Jesse Ames, Andrew Baltes, Raine Brown, Shawn C. Phillips

Rated: UR/Region: 1/Widescreen/Number of disc: 1

Available from SRS CINEMA

THE PLOT

There's a mysterious VHS tape that dwells in the comic book shop of Deathbone (Billy Garberina), the eccentric barbarian shop owner. Deathbone has priced this tape at $1500, and in 25 years nobody has ever forked over the cash to buy it... that is, until now. Thus begins the Geek War. Two nerds, Max (Kurt Indovina) and Papillion (Josh Suire), fight to claim the tape as their own from the clutches of Tangerine (Raine Brown), a dorky but super hot girl who loves comic books and swooped in and bought the tape before they could. Both sides pull every trick in the book to seduce Tangerine in hopes of grasping the tape and viewing its legendary content. But in the course of trying to win the tape, Max ends up falling for Tangerine, and that is when the REAL trouble begins...

HOWS THE MOVIE?

While I greatly respect and admire director Chris Seaver I don't always find satisfaction in all of his film. That being said, while Geek War is very much a Chris Seaver film, it still packed just the right subject matter and plot to pull me in and make me enjoy it. I might have even liked this one more so than I have any other film of his. I'm not going to say that there isn't moments that maybe take a joke too far or make a joke that falls flat, but there way more hit than miss here and often times what happens is truly hilarious. Of course it will also help a lot if you are a big fan of VHS tapes going into the thing as well. Like I said, it packs just the right amount of nerd lingo and reference, but it also helps that you are a fan of comic books and such going in.

There are a lot of familiar faces here as well. We have the usual folks we see in Chris Seaver films, but then we also have Cooluder himself, Shawn C. Phillips and we have Raine Brown. As good as Brown always is, it is still nice to see her in something that actually isn't a horror movie for once. So, as far as indie comedies go you could do a lot worse than Geek War, a film that is actually pretty dam fun and entertaining. We have a plot that is a bit silly, but that is its charm. It is also a film that seems to actually pack some re-watch value. Could this be Seaver's best film overall? I think there could be a very good chance of that. If you want something dealing with cool and interesting things that is also good for a few laughs you should seek this one out.
