Bob Mould
 Circle of Friends
 By Sam Sutherland

For anyone who missed Mould's recent all-star outing (recent, in this case, referring to two years ago) would be well advised to pick up Circle of Friends, as would anyone fortunate enough to have taken in the veteran musician's eclectic performance live. With a band comprised of Fugazi's Brendan Canty, Richard Morel and Rockets Over Sweden's Jason Narducy, this particular release draws on the band's show at DC's famed 9:30 Club. Touted as "career spanning," the breadth of material here is well deserving of the title. Sugar, Hüsker Dü and Mould's own solo career are all well-represented, with favourites like "I Apologize" and "Makes No Sense At All" sounding as energetic and relevant as brand new tracks from Mould's recent outing, Body of Song. AC/DC - Plug Me In

Quite possibly the most comprehensive visual package of AC/DC material in their 30-plus years, the double-disc Plug Me In set features both eras of the Aussie rock'n'rollers in all of their blues-influenced glory. Kicking off with the band's first period, we witness the growing pains of origi...Read More

Noah23

When Boston-bred rapper Mr. Lif couldn't make a 2004 performance in Athens Greece, organizers asked Noah23 instead, making him one of the first North American hip-hop artists to rock a mic there. Similar one-off invitations have enabled Noah Brickley to play Europe and select parts of Canada and the... Read More

Comic - Fight Club

Scott Pilgrim, hero of the ongoing music-obsessed tale of literally fighting through a girlfriend's past in order to win her heart, is the ultimate slacker, unable to hold a job, reliant on his roommate to pay the rent, and too unfocused to get a gig together for his band. The opposite is true of <...

3:10 To Yuma Dir. by James Mangold

Whether you see it as a return to form for the western as a serious medium for moral exploration or simply as a damn fine example of the genre, there's no denying the fierce quality of the filmmaking. James Mangold (Walk the Line) has gone to admirable lengths to craft a reverent retelling of...
