

Santa Monica Daily Press

'Composing the Beatles Songbook: Lennon and McCartney 1966-1976'

An insightful independent documentary film, here is a compelling look at the partnership, music, and impact of these great composers during a hugely creative period. By 1966 The Beatles were at the biggest turning point in their career. No longer a touring band, their focus on new music directions produced some of the most significant work of their legendary career. Noted authors, leading critics, and friends analyze the duo's working patterns as well as their output on "Rubber Soul," "Revolver," "Sgt. Peppers," "The White Album," "Abbey Road," and "Let It Be." (MVD)

Randy Williams can be reached at writtenbyrw@yahoo.com