

"Leonard Cohen's Lonesome Heroes"

This recent biodoc is for scholarly fans of the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame singer-songwriter-poet from Canada. The wandering film is more concerned with his influences than the details of his life. We see performance clips of Cohen but also of some of those he admired. He favored artists ranging from the Beat poets to Bob Dylan and Judy Collins as well as Hank Williams and Ray Charles. Religion also plays a role, as Cohen was ordained as a Buddhist monk in 1996. Unrated, 110 minutes. DVD extras: a seven-minute interview with Judy Collins and contributor biographies.
