DVD Review: Razzy Bailey – Live Recordings From The Church Street Station

September 3rd, 2007 by zzsimonb

Razzy Bailey may not be a name that you recall. But, as he explains to the audience Razzy is his real name, in fact he is Razzy Jr, his dad being Razzy Snr. Razzy Baily may not be a name that you recognize but he is a force to be reckoned with. In his illustrious career he has had more than 30 songs that have charted in the Billboard top 10. That is not a bad batting average!

This DVD features Razzy in a concert performed at The Church Street Station in Florida. Razzy has a unique style which makes it hard to stick a label on, is he country, is he white soul, or is he blues? The answer is, he is all of the above and then some.

He starts off the set with the delightful ‘9,999,999 Tears’, and a very fine rendition it is. Also included are his #1 hits ‘What Time Do You Have To Be Back In Heaven’, ‘I Keep Coming Back’, and ‘Midnight Hauler’.

Guest Becky Hobbs treats us to ‘Hottest Ex In Texas’, and the mysteriously named W. Billingsley performs McArthur Park.

Released by Quantum Leap, you can get your copy from MVD.
