Ok, if you dont know anything about the Rolling Stones, or you're too young to really know much about the band, this is a must see documentary dvd! It chronicle's the bands 2 year period where they wrote some of their darkest material ever, & I learned something I really never knew about the band..they were one of the first bands to release double A sides on a single..what that means is, there were 2 hit singles on a 45 record..usually, there was one hit single & the flip side was a b-side that wasn't meant to be played on radio. There's also an interesting part where they talk about the recording of "Jumoin Jack Flash" & the guitars were recorded as if it was a punk rock band..the guitars were meant to be noisy, angry & loud, & for that era, they definitely achieved that! The band had this very psychedelic vibe, but then there's that angry rock style that you can't deny, & that's what always attracted me to the Rolling Stones..they had loads o' influences from country, to rock, to punk, & they had this amazing rhythm & groove, so this is a dvd you really need to check out, it's a great piece of rock n roll history that's madatory watching!
