Frank Zappa – The Freak Out List (2010)

Directed By:Unkown

Review Written By: Justin Bozung

Available on DVD in USA through MVD Distributors on April 20th, 2010.

Ok..NOW we're talkin! Zappa style! Frank Zappa is an amazing advocate, musician, and composer. A gem of his time! The Freak Out List is a feature documentary account of the infamous mystery Frank Zappa created when he put out his first LP with his band at the time, The Mothers Of Invention in 1966. The list was comprised of several rows (23 names per row) of the musicians that put the inspiration in Zappa past and present.

This film covers each of the names on the list, starting at the beginning and not stopping. Zappa family movies, and live concert footage is inter-cut with interview footage of key Zappa players like George Duke, and Ian Underwood and several historians and experts of avant garde classical composers and arrangers. An essential purchase for hard-core die hard Zappa nuts. This documentary may miss-lead some mild mannered fans however, who think they are getting 88 minutes of pure Zappa madness. For sure, a interesting and informative film, that will teach a Baby Snake a thing or two about what real music is all about!
