Scissor Sisters – Live in Victoria Park (Wienerworld)

The Scissor Sisters grabbed my attention from their get-go. They're style is a mix of retro-minded music – with some definite influx from Elton John and, more blatantly, (they did a remake), Pink Floyd. It's all about pop sensibilities from then, which have not lost any of their coolness, fused to pop power of today. Retro meets edgy. And these guys (and girl[s]?) boast in in yo FACE! 'tude that comes off of even their photographs. But rather than abrasions via metal or punk screaming, they hit hard with brilliant pop songwriting from artists who understand their field of endeavor, its roots, and its future. LIVE IN VICTORIA PARK is like having an album of the Scissor Sisters with the bonus of live footage to boost it. An energetic and titillating performance loaded with hits and the kind of hooks and hell-yeah you expect from this band. Good in the studio and off the hook on stage. See what I mean . . . .
