Eddie Cochran: Dark Lonely Street

Memorial 10inch Vinyl LP plus Bonus CD

April 17, 2020 marked the 60th year of the death of Rock & Roll singer and guitarist Eddie Cochran. We want to dedicate a 10inch LP with a bonus CD to this great musician on this sad occasion. Besides some well-known recordings, this CD contains real rarities, some of which are now available on vinyl for the first time! Cochran has made himself immortal with hits like C'mon Everybody, Summertime Blues and Twenty Flight Rock; but he was also a much sought-after session musician and played guitar on recordings like You Oughta See Grandma Rock by Skeets McDonald, Baby Please Don't Go by Troyce Key and Ray Stanley's My Lovin' Baby. In addition to the 10inch LP and an accompanying CD with numerous bonus tracks, there is an 8-page folder with liner notes by Bill Dahl and a statement by Stephen Swan. Swan has been very active and successful in 2019 in restoring the memorial stone that stands at the place where Eddie Cochran's life came to a tragic end.

Warren Zevon - Life'll Kill Ya: 20th Anniversary Edition

Warren Zevon's 10th studio album on vinyl for the first time, featuring expanding liner notes and rare photos!

Following a decade of stagnation and waning interest, legendary singer-songwriter Warren Zevon, who masked his soft-side with his sarcastic, lyrical prose, entered the new millennium with his acclaimed 10th studio album Life'll Kill Ya. Though the album predated Zevon's fatal cancer diagnosis by two years, its title track, as well as standout cuts like "My Shit's Fucked Up" and "Don't Let Us Get Sick," brought the album critical praise as a "mournful lament on the aging process and the inevitable decay that accompanies it." Available now for the first time on vinyl, and limited to 1000 copies, Ship To Shore PhonoCo's 20th anniversary reissue of Life'll Kill Ya features brand-new, expanded liner notes and rare photos from Jorge Calderón, Zevon's son, Jordan, and Dawes' Taylor Goldsmith. Other highlights include "Porcelain Monkey," which puts Elvis Presley in Zevon's sardonic crosshairs, a cover of Steve Winwood's "Back In The High Life Again" sounds as if it were written for Zevon, and "Fistful of Rain" is a melodious examination of the fickle nature of fame. Engineered as a comeback vehicle, co-produced by Paul Q. Kolderie and Sean Slade (the producing duo responsible for Radiohead's Pablo Honey), Zevon's songwriting collaborator Jorge Calderón added a lighthearted accent to Zevon's musical portraits of doom and gloom. Despite helping with a successful comeback, Life'll Kill Ya's content was revealed all too true when, in 2003, Zevon passed away of pleural mesothelioma. "I mean, the fact that life will kill you is just that," Zevon told Rolling Stone in upon the album's release. "I think you have to spend a fair amount of time realizing that you will be, so that you'll remember to enjoy everything you possibly can every minute you're not. You always want to try and tell younger people that, which is very difficult, because they don't really hear it because they feel a life has been imposed on them. And of course, they're absolutely correct."

PRESS

"[A] bleakly witty but unblinking glimpses into the abyss of mortality."
—Mark Deming, AllMusic

"[Zevon] becomes the object of his own wicked fascination. By turning inward, he managed to go out on top."
—Stephen Deuser, Stereogum

"I love this guy. One of the great singer-songwriters of rock and roll."
—David Letterman

"Life'll Kill Ya features a Zevon fully in command of the gifts evident in his classic '70s work, most notably a sardonic sense of humor tempered by a melancholy sense of humanity."
—Keith Phillips, AV Club

"There is something redemptive about Zevon's grumpy, mordant view of the world. He may not be able to hit the high notes, but his songs are clever, burnished gems. Besides, you can't deny the truth of the title song."
—People Staff, People

"Elegantly played music and eloquently sung lyrics are the hallmarks of this no-risk disc."
—Dan Aquilante, New York Post

"...resonates with the quizzical poignancy of midlife survival while still harkening his delectably deranged 'Excitable Boy' heyday."
—Beth Johnson, Entertainment Weekly

Abstract Void - Back To Reality CD

blackgaze blackwave dreamwave experimental melancholic metal melodic metalatmospheric black metal retrowave synthwave

An amazing mix of Synthwave and Blackgaze. This album really creates an amazing atmosphere, it's like the nostalgia of synthwave turned on you. There is a brutal purity to these songs that, thanks to engaging songwriting and hook-laden structures, bulldoze their way through nostalgic-sounding synthesized chord progressions and, for extra weight, rich arpeggios.

Nicole Mitchell & Lisa E. Harris - Earthseed

In response to the real chaos and horrific nature of our times, a sonic EarthSeed, after Octavia Butler.

The work of award-winning African American science fiction author Octavia E. Butler becomes increasingly prophetic as we move through the challenges of the new century. Her novels "Parable of the Sower" (1993) and "Parable of the Talents" (1996) use fiction to illuminate a horrific unraveling of 21st-century America into a despotic chaos where its once-middle-class citizens struggle to survive in an incredibly violent and fragmented reality, void of normalcy, family, and resources. In the 1990s, Butler's Parables warned readers about a possible disintegration of American culture and infrastructure, among the many risks of tyrannical rule. Within Butler's storyline, the character Lauren Oya Olamina, a preacher's daughter of African heritage, helps to rebuild her community through offering Earthseed, an egalitarian philosophy and spiritual practice which honors inquiry, independent thinking, and realistic acceptance of constant change.

Joachim at one point uttered the idea of recording free improvisations and let the rhythm section play on top of it afterwards. The second CD is in recorded as "Saxotronics - Music for Saxophone Quartet"

MVD WELCOMES: Paladino Music

With four record labels, a sheet music publishing division, our own webstore and blog, and an associated ensemble, we are among Europe's most diversified music businesses. Founded in Vienna in 2009 as "paladino music" to create a high-quality platform for my musician friends' projects and with an entrepreneurial vision of artistic sustainability, working in opposition to the rapidly growing tendency to first push and then quickly forget an artist, paladino has continued to grow into a boutique, but internationally recognized musical enterprise. In 2011 and 2013, we created two new record labels, and in 2015 managed to acquire KAIROS – our biggest and most important step expanding our catalogue so far. We celebrated our first big anniversary year (ten years of paladino and 20 years of KAIROS) in 2019 and will have many exciting releases in the coming years!

The Popcorn genre is a style of music and dancing first established in Belgium in the 1960s and it got its name from a discotheque called the Popcorn. This style includes a pretty eclectic and wide range of American of R&B and pop songs mostly recorded in the 1950s and mid-1960s in a slow or medium tempo and often in a minor key. LIFE AND DEATH OF BRIAN JONES

A DANNY GARCIA FILM

'Rolling Stone: Life and Death of Brian Jones' is the first documentary to be produced about the founder and original leader of The Rolling Stones.

In the mid 60's, Brian Jones emerged as 'the face' and poster boy of the Bohemian Swingin' London scene, topping the charts with The Rolling Stones and dating model/actress Anita Pallenberg. However, his excessive lifestyle and his reputation as 'the original bad boy of Rock & Roll' was to cost him dearly. As the scene descended into the acid ridden year of 1967 so did Brian. Targeted by the authorities and media, he spiralled out of control losing both Anita and the respect of the Stones. Two years later, Brian was found at the bottom of his swimming pool, the verdict: death by misadventure. During the last 50 years many theories have emerged, claiming that Brian was murdered and that it was covered up at high level, as this film discovers the evidence for this is extremely compelling.

Vivienne Wilder - postromantic CD

On "postromantic" Toronto-based Vivienne Wilder revels in her Banshee-inspired punk, with the atmosphere of Bloc Party, and the lyrical skill of The Cure's Robert Smith. This despite a classical upbringing and a multi-genred past. The songs are all post romance; of doomed love; of break-ups, disillusionment, the loss of innocence. She is The New Alternative; fierce, essential and masterful.

Third album

Drawing on a diverse sonic palette, With The End In Mind creates a distinctive sound, rooted to Place. Each movement of the album reveals itself to be interwoven parts of a cohesive whole. Luscious soundscapes build from a whisper, only to be split like straining trees by the thunderous black metal storm. The maelstrom is tempered by the occasional hint of dark folk and classic psychedelia

WHAT SHE SAID: THE ART OF PAULINE KAEI

What She Said tells the story of New Yorker film critic and best-selling author Pauline Kael. Narrated by Sarah J Parker

Director Rob Garver first read Pauline Kael's work as a young person in the 1980s, and he says that the fiery passion with which she wrote about film made a deep impression on him.

Kael undisputedly transformed film into an art form in the eyes of the public. As a result of her writing, the pleasant weekend pastime quality of movie-going suddenly became a must-see, do-or-die, high-stakes experience.

For Kael, watching films was a visceral adventure; she responded to them as if they were real events. Her vital spirit, cocksure attitude, fevered instincts, and withering wisecracks leapt off the page and made you laugh. And as Quentin Tarantino once observed, Kael was so on the nose at times that she could sometimes change your mind about a film you may have thought was pretty good.

With this film, Rob wanted to take the excitement that he felt while reading Kael's work and translate it to the screen. The story is told largely through Kael's own words, which are collected from interviews, private letters, and published writing. Sarah Jessica Parker voices Pauline.

PRESS

"To see Rob Garver's affectionate documentary about Kael's career is to be once again swept away by the excitement of cinema as she experienced it."

—James Greenberg, The Wrap

"The documentary is most insightful when it identifies Kael's influences, strengths and weaknesses."

—Nell Minow, Roger Ebert.com

"Not only explores the special talent of Kael and what made her famous, but is also a snapshot of a volatile and exciting era of film history..."

—G. Allen Johnson, San Francisco Chronicle

"If Kael were still alive, she might well have wanted 'What She Said' to cock a more critical eye toward her. She says right in the doc that it's dangerous for a critic to be too popular."

—Peter Howell, Toronto Star

Duo Concertante - Schubert: Music For Violin And Piano CD

This recording by Duo Concertante contains Franz Schubert's most important works for violin and piano.

This music is all about melody. In the Rondo, which is very virtuosic, Schubert settles down to beautiful lyricism. In the Fantasy the theme from Sei mir gegrüßt is simple, but exquisite - but the variations are extremely virtuosic. Even in Schubert's flashy moments he is still singing. The Lied is never far away in Schubert's music!
