Tired Of Fighting - And Then Suddenly It Hits You Vinyl

The thinking doctor says I'm sick... but he doesn't know you like I did.

'And Then Suddenly It Hits You' is an album about grief, loss, and mental health struggles. The opening track, 'Night Dwellers', kicks off with a distortion-fueled lament on late-night introspection. Witching Hour - Descending... Where Time Has Ceased To Exist Vinyl

On their 4th full length, the German 3-piece continues with their incredible mix of black/thrash and traditional heavy metal.

It's been a long trip for WITCHING HOUR. Formed in 2006 in Germany, the band's earliest work tended toward paradigmatic blackthrash, particularly the Teutonic iteration of it. Their 4th album Descending... Where Time Has Ceased to Exist however marries prog-rock structures to ancient heavy metal riffing & melody and draped in the atmosphere of pioneering German thrash and earliest black metal

Witching Hour - Rise Of The Desecrated Vinyl

Pure, evil blackened thrash metal from Germany, reissue of the 2009 debut album.

Originally released in 2009, this album has not lost any of its juvenile enthusiasm for raw and evil thrash metal. While the band developed a more complex style of blackened heavy thrash throughout the years, this debut album is pure and straightforward black thrashing madness. This album perfectly represents the Teutonic (black) thrash revival of the mid-2000s.

Zerre - Rotting On A Golden Throne Vinyl

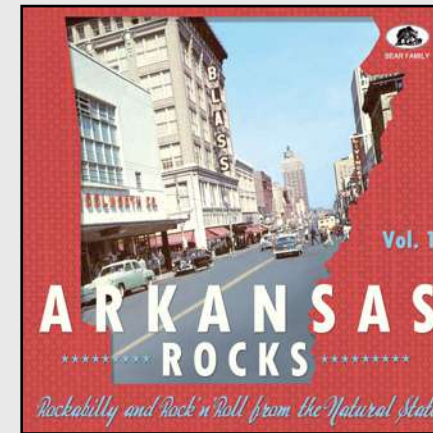

Darker than its predecessor, Zerre's 2nd album is an aggressive fusion of 80s US thrash & stomping hardcore.

ZERRE's sound draws on the razor-sharp aggression of classic Metallica and Exodus and the stomping groove of early Faith No More. Their 2024 LP Scorched Souls, tore through the scene earning critical acclaim for its searing riffs and unflinching energy. Now, ZERRE take a decisive step forward with Rotting on a Golden Throne. Darker, more overtly political, and more aggressive than its predecessor.

Dead Pioneers - Wagon Burner

Dead Pioneers, the Indigenous fronted punk-rock band from Denver CO, are preparing to unleash their fearsome third album 'Wagon Burner'.

Dead Pioneers, the Indigenous fronted punk-rock band from Denver CO, are preparing to unleash their third album 'Wagon Burner', set for release on June 26th via Hassle Records. Dead Pioneers is rooted in a 2020 piece called The Punk Pan-Indian Romantic Comedy, a deeply personal work that dealt with vocalist Gregg Deal's cultural upbringing. Following an embryonic performance of the piece, Deal secured a grant to expand it to include music created especially for the work. A miraculous, natural chemistry made this supposed one-off project an actual band almost as soon as they cut what became their 2023 self-titled debut album. What followed was "a series of strange accidents" that led to the group signing to Hassle, befriending Jello Biafra and touring with kindred spirits like Pennywise, Propagandi, even Pearl Jam. "Punk-rock had made everything seem so accessible when I was a kid," says Deal. "Like, simply having the balls to get up on stage and stage dive and then be carried off by people that become your best friends once they get your feet back on the ground." Now, punk-rock was reaching out its hands to Dead Pioneers and pulling them onto larger and larger stages. The group returned that favour by simply getting better and better: their second album, 2025's POST AMERICAN, was sharper, angrier, funnier than the debut, a riot riveted with punch-a-Nazi thrills. And now, Wagon Burner, their fearsome third album. Described by Deal as "more collaborative", it's a heavier, harder but also more accessible set, vicious hooks scattered among the punk-rock melee and guest appearances by kindred spirits Cheap Perfume (on the righteous 'Nazi Teeth'), The Interrupters (on the shout-a-long anthem 'Never Alone') and, bringing it back to the group's beginnings, Sleaford Mods (on the searing slow-burn of 'The Worst Among Us'). The world might be darkening by the day, but Dead Pioneers are rising to that miserable occasion, casting their empowering light into the gloom.

Enrico Pieranunzi on piano, Michele Polga on sax, Fønnesbaek on bass and Beggio on drums form Perspectives, a quartet making its recording debut here.

Pieranunzi, Polga, Fønnesbæk, and Beggio have each internalized, in different ways, stylistic layers sedimented by tradition (as well as more recent, US-driven sounds).

"The Ed Sullivan Show, which aired from 1948 to 1971 and boasted between 35 and 50 million viewers each Sunday night, was one of the first mainstream stages to showcase Black talent--as the artists wanted to be seen"

—Olivia Waxman, Time Magazine

"Sullivan introduced America to itself through entertainers -- filling his stage and our tiny screens at home with Broadway's best, vaudeville greats, jazz legends and pop and rock'n roll legends in the making"

DELCO: THE MOVIE Arrives on DVD June 23!

Delco: The Movie is a heartfelt, irreverent, and proudly local coming-of-age dramedy that captures the humor, grit, and identity of Delaware County, Pennsylvania. Written, directed, produced, and edited by Delco native Chris Pierdomenico, the film follows three lifelong friends as they embark on one wild night that starts with familiar small-town rituals—late-night Wawa runs, backroads, and corner-bar laughs—but becomes a deeper story about friendship, self-discovery, and what it really means to belong.

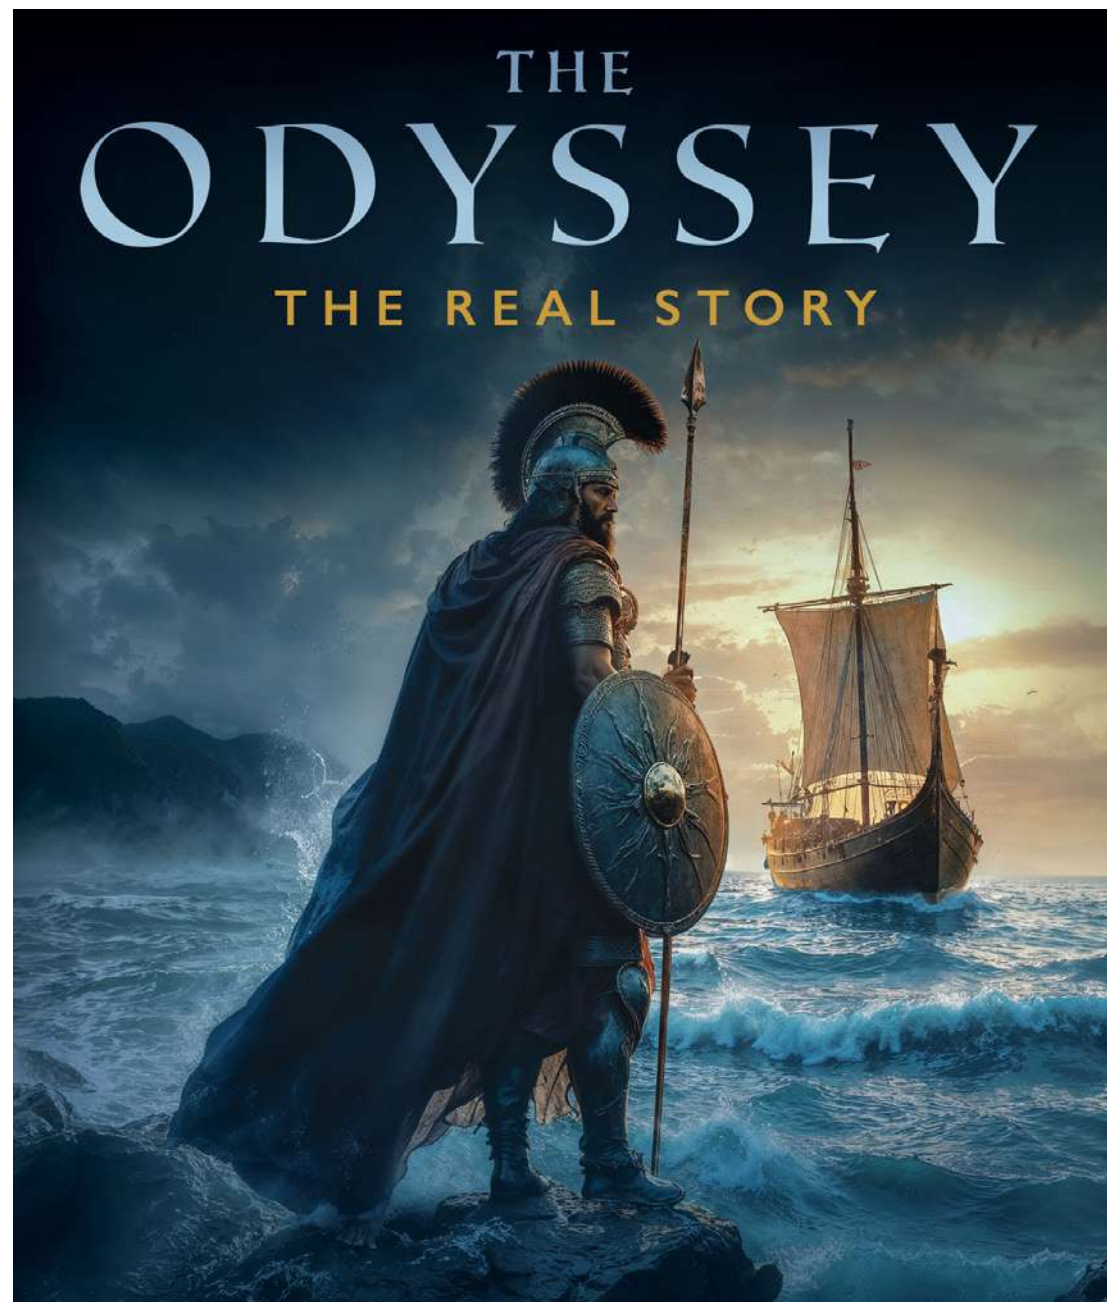

The ensemble cast bridges cult-classic nostalgia and local authenticity, including Brian O'Halloran (Clerks), Brian Anthony Wilson (The Wire), Brian Dunkleman (American Idol), Jenna Kuerzi, Steve Harding, and Jeff Pfeiffer.

Together they bring warmth, humor, and raw honesty to a story that's both uniquely Delco and universally relatable.

Badland

A shattered Iraq vet kills his family but spares his young daughter, taking her into a deadly flight across small-town America.

After serving in Iraq, reservist Jerry Rice (Jamie Draven) returns home to a life in ruins: a dead-end job at a rural gas station, a failing marriage to Nora (Vinessa Shaw), and a mind poisoned by the horrors of Fallujah. When his ruthless boss falsely accuses him of theft, Jerry's fragile psyche shatters. In a moment of madness, his family is destroyed; only his eight-year-old daughter, Celina (Grace Caroline Currey), survives.

Desperate and on the run, Jerry stages a bloody crime scene at a river to convince the world they are both dead. They disappear into the American backroads, living a grim existence of abandoned farmhouses and cheap motels while the national news paints Jerry as a monster. Despite the trauma, Celina--who talks to God like a friend--accepts a new identity as "Rose" to stay by her father's side.

Their journey stalls in Fineman, a fading town where Jerry finds work at a diner owned by Oli (Chandra West). For a moment, Jerry and Celina find the semblance of a real home. However, Celina's desire for a normal childhood leads her to a local church, where she is spotted by Max (Joe Morton), the town's new sheriff.

A fellow Iraq veteran struggling with his own demons, Max bonds with Jerry over shared war stories, unaware of the man's true identity. But as DNA evidence from the river reaches the media and a digitally aged photo of Celina goes viral, Max begins to suspect that his new friend is a fugitive.

Torn between his duty and his empathy for a fellow soldier, Max confronts Jerry. Their meeting triggers an intimate, tense showdown over guilt, faith, and the violence they brought home from the war. As his refuge collapses, Jerry must make one final, devastating choice to determine Celina's future--and his own.

BADLAND is a character-driven drama exploring war's long shadow and a father's last chance to break a cycle of violence.
