

Drive-In Massacre

1976, 2007 Cheezy Flicks Ent,

This classic cult film starts out... "On August 19th in a California Drive-In it all began..."

This rated R, filmed in color, 69 minute movie from 1976 is brought to you by Cheezy Flicks Entertainment (for good reason) and MVD.

It starts out in that old Drive-In style filming where all the glitches and fuzz come floating through the film and you wonder how many times they played the reel. But maybe they didn't do that on purpose, because it clears up later... maybe it was just too overplayed, though you'll wonder why when you watch it yourself!

The first murder occurs when a young man's head is sliced off while he reaches for the sound box for the Drive-In movie he and his girlfriend are watching (well, he's watching, she was more interested in... other things). The young couple become just the first of many victims of the Drive-In Massacre.

Do the massacres have something to do with the carnival that once inhabited the land on which the drive-in now sits? Was the murder the crazy sword swallower or was it the hateful projectionist- or maybe it was someone else all together. You'll have to watch to find out.

The next night the killing continues and the detectives pursue their job of finding out who the killer is. Both times it has been a happy couple out to see a movie, is there a pattern here? As the killings continue and more people die you'll have yourself wondering- why am I still watching this and who is slicing these people up!? Well, you'll never know if you don't watch it for yourself!

This move does for Drive-In theaters what 'Psycho' did for showers... just be happy there aren't many Drive-Ins left these days!
