Five Horse Johnson

The Mystery Spot (Small Stone)

After ten years, six albums, and one stroke, Five Horse Johnson is showing no sign of slowing down. The Mystery Spot, the Ohio band's latest, features Clutch's JP Gaster on drums and a whole lot of boogie rock everywhere else. Summertime is good drinkin' time, and these boys provide the soundtrack.

Blind Guardian

A Twist In The Myth (Nuclear Blast)

Germany's Blind Guardian - the world's best-loved power metal band - returns after four years of silence with the "Fly" single off their latest release, A Twist In The Myth. Marking the debut of new drummer Frederik Ehmke, Blind Guardian will be bringing their dynamic and epic heaviness to North America beginning in November, 2006.

Turn Me On Dead Man

Technicolour Mother (Alternative Tentacles)

Frontman and songwriter Mykill Ziggy whipped the team into service of a fuller, deeper psych rock sound spanning reference points from Bowie and Bolan to Smashing Pumpkins hooks and Melvins' heaviness. "Heavydelic" pioneers since 2000, Turn Me On Dead Man plays heavy crush bliss rock breaking the sound barrier on their own private Lear jet headed straight to hell.

Die Hunns

You Rot Me (Volcom)

Combining a slew of rock 'n' roll, r&b and punk rock influences from the '60s to present date into highly memorable, hook-laden, well-crafted songs with alternating female and male lead vocals and a plenty of rock n roll swagger; think Lou Reed's Transformer played by The Stooges and produced by Marc Bolan and then you are beginning to get the idea.

Throtterod

Nail (Small Stone)

The great thing about Throtterod is that they refuse to let themselves be pigeonholed. They've written the Great American Rock once, so with Nail they opted for a new, heavier direction. The greater thing about Throtterod is that they continue to write impressive songs. And the greatest thing about thing about Throtterod is that they show no sign of slowing down.
