Cantankerous Titles & Obscure Ephemera Vol.1

Joe Biel

A curious collection of short films from filmmaker Joe Biel

The main thing that comes across whilst watching Joe Biel's selection of short documentaries is that you can find inspiration pretty much anywhere - grab a camera, go for a wander and chances are you'll come across something worth pointing a camera at. Amongst the varied things that Biel found to point a camera at include the increasingly creative and elaborate bike lane markings put onto the roads in Portland, people obsessed with playing the strategy board game RISK, a tongue in cheek look at punks and skaters and the message-laden patches that they adorn their apparel with, the decline of passenger-based rail services throughout North America, and, erm, a dog. A slightly clever dog. Called Coda Bowles. Charming, entertaining and visually interesting, Biel's films have an enjoyably unjudged and inquisitive tone that brings his subjects of choice to life. Worth checking out.
