Are you one of those people who like to go to sleep listening to music, only to find your earbuds slip out the first time you roll over? Sound Oasis has come up with the solution, by embedding two ultra-thin, hi-fidelity stereo speakers inside a comfortable, 20-inch by 25-inch pillow.

KIDROBOT Futurama Mini Figures

($8.95; kidrobot.com)

In celebration of new Futurama episodes scheduled to start airing in mid-2010, pick up a blind box (or 12) and collect all of the 3-inch vinyl figures, designed by the show's creators, Matt Groening and David X. Cohen especially for KidRobot. It's a much easier way to keep your fave characters on hand than, say, cryogenically freezing them. Oh, wait...

MATTEL Mindflex™

($79.99; mindflexgames.com)

You've got to admit, telekinesis is pretty rad, and now the fine folks over at Mattel have found a way for non-superheroes to enjoy the power. Mindflex's special headset with forehead and earlobe sensors measures your brainwaves, so when you concentrate hard enough, you can move a ball through the game's obstacle course without even lifting a finger. Perfect the art; then challenge your friends to a "lift off."
