D.O.A.'s Joe Keithley immortalized as bobblehead

By John Lucas

He calls himself Shithead, but now folks might start calling him Throbblehead. Well, probably not. But legendary D.O.A. leader Joe Keithley has been immortalized in polyresin with his very own bobblehead. Sorry, "throbblehead". That's what Aggronautix calls its spring-necked figurines.

Joe Keithley's "throbblehead": the head-to-body ratio is not to scale. We hope.

The company has also produced throbbleheads of G.G. Allin, the Descendents, Dwarves, and Tesco Vee of the Meatmen. The Keithley version ships in early April.

In other D.O.A. news, Keithley's own Sudden Death Records will release the band's latest studio album, Talk - Action = 0, on May 1.

I never realized Shithead was so attractive. Not that there's anything wrong with that.

Check out the pro olympic tag catch phrase they are using to sell this made in china junk

Congrats Canada! You just won the gold medal in ice hockey, and no one could be prouder than Joe Shithead Keithley, the leader of legendary Canadian hardcore gods D.O.A.
