

POP! CULT

SWEET STUFF. STAT.

1 ECO HATCHERY DIY Eco Starter Kit

(starting at $50; ecohatchery.com)

So you just finished school, got a job and moved into your own place—now what? How about going green? With tools to monitor appliance, energy and water use, you not only cut down on utility bills, but you also minimize your impact on the planet. That's what we call a return on investment.

2 AGGRONAUTIX Wendy O. Williams "1982" Throbbiehead

($16.95; aggronautix.com)

Catching the charismatic Plasmatics leader in all of her early-'80s glory, this polyresin Wendy O. Williams figure stands tall at 7 inches, representing the first female musician to get the "throbbiehead" treatment. She's limited to 2,000, though, so don't miss out on the spiked armbands and platinum "hawk."

3 CROSLEY Revolution Turntable

($149.95; crosleyradio.com)

This is definitely not your Grandpap's turntable: For starters, there's no box, making it the most mobile turntable in the Crosley family yet. But just 'cause it's small doesn't mean it isn't mighty—the battery-powered player has two speeds, a USB hookup for analog-to-digital transfer and dual headphone jacks.

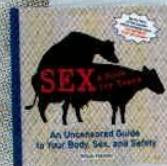

4 FUNIMATION Fullmetal Alchemist Brotherhood Pt. 1

($49.98; funimation.com)

If you're unfamiliar with manga but into Harry Potter, Fullmetal Alchemist is a good place to start as it centers on two scientist brothers and their quest for the Philosopher's Stone (that's the Sorcerer's Stone for all you non-Brits out there). The animated version is based on Hiromu Arakawa's classic manga series, and faithfully sticks to his original vision.

BOOK BEGS

SEX: A Book For Teens; Nikol Hasler

($16.95; zestbooks.net)

Much like she does on her Midwest Teen Sex Show webisodes, Nikol Hasler addresses every aspect of doin' it (or not doin' it) with straight-up, refreshing honesty and humor. Every teen thinking about the deed should first get some tips and advice on staying smart and safe from this book.

RULES TO ROCK BY; Josh Farrar

($16.99; rulestorockby.com)

Who said books can't be interactive? This YA novel about a teen girl who is obsessed with Deerhoof and wants to start a band is not only an engaging read, but it comes with a soundtrack (featuring covers and originals by real-life teen band Blame The Patient) to boot.

THE ACCIDENTAL MILLIONAIRES: The Founding Of Facebook; Ben Mezrich

($15.95; doubleday.com)

Everyone you know has a Facebook page, so who's making the money off this mega-popular social networking site? Ben Mezrich dives into the controversial world of FB founder Mark Zuckerberg. Read up now, because the whole sordid story is coming to the silver screen this fall.

THE ADVANCE GENIUS THEORY; Jason Hartley

($15; simonandschuster.com)

"Is it, in fact, unfair to criticize a formerly great artist for his latter-day sins?" is a question Barry poses to Rob in High Fidelity. According to Jason Hartley and his advance genius theory no, it is not. Brilliant minds that do questionable things have simply progressed beyond mere mortal's understanding. Read it and see if you buy it.
