

AMP FASHION

By Susannah Caviness

AGGRONAUTIX

Aggronautix just created two new Throbbleheads that sit perfectly on any car dashboard or desk. "You may have seen the limited run Andrew W.K. Throbblehead on this year's Warped Tour, but if you didn't catch it then, the Aggronautix website (<http://aggronautix.com/>) has everything you love about the King of Party-- bloody, dirty white duds included. Limited to 1000, this 7" figure is made of durable polyresin that can withstand all the hard partying it encourages. Also, check out the G.G. Allin 1991 Condensed Carnage Throbblehead. Standing at 5", it's sure to spruce up any boring office space, classroom, or bring it with you on the road! These dudes make awesome gifts and come with some pretty rad window box packaging.

AWK $19.95
GG $14.95

LEGIONNAIRE

The brainchild of Joe Moxley and MxPx front man Mike Herrera, Legionnaire offers super comfortable apparel at a more than reasonable price. The two create their own designs, and the result is a young and fresh brand that has evolved over the last three years into "clothing that we would actually wear."

In the few short years of being a company, Legionnaire hit the ground running and has teamed up with numerous well-renowned bands including MxPx, Tumbledown, Say Anything, and Amber Pacific. Having recently worked with Chanel from MTV's Rob Dyrdek's Fantasy Factory, the brand is offering an exclusive "Chanel is my Homegirl" t-shirt through their webstore.

As seen on America's Next Top Model and TMZ, the brand is just as loyal to their customers as they are to them, and have even received inquiries from the Playboy Princess herself, Holly Madison. Still being levelheaded players in the apparel business, Legionnaire hand screens all of their designs on quality materials. "It's a great feeling to have bands and celebrities contact us because they truly like the brand," says Moxley.

Check out all the Legionnaire designs, with more to come, at www.legionnairearmy.com or scope out Chantal Accessories Showroom in downtown LA.

MANIC PANIC

Beloved makers of the hair dye out 14 (and 25) year-old selves added, Manic Panic has just rolled out a completely vegan cosmetic line, called Creatures of the Night, thanks to a licensing deal with InStyle Studio Corporation. Debuting at New York's Fashion Week, the collection features edgy shades enthused by the brand's diverse line of hair coloring products. Ranging from intense nail polish to rich lipsticks and ominous eyeliner to smoothing pressed powder, this limited-edition and cruelty-free line stays put and won't wear off. You have the option of buying pieces, or buying entire kits. Each kit contains tips and tricks to bringing out your inner vixen in a progression of looks -- anywhere from PG-13 to Rated X.

Red Letter Girl Cosmetics

With an extensive background in cosmetology and fashion, Josie Outlaw of The A.K.A.s decided to create RED LETTER GIRL, a cosmetic line deeply rooted in the punk community. Her strong DIY ethos helped mastermind a colorful and funky nine-piece chromatic eye shadow set -- "CHROMATOSE" -- that undeniably makes a bold statement in any setting. Made for those who fearlessly want to express themselves, RED LETTER GIRL has everything you need to stand out. The line not only has reusable packaging, but also is totally animal friendly!

Check the website for the store and handy tutorials.
www.redlettergirlcosmetics.com

Tres Noir Optics

Summer may be officially over, but you can still look stylish (without sacrificing function and individuality!) with this distinctive sunglass collection from Tres Noir Optics. What once was a garage operation in 2005, has now spanned into a full-on business of handmade sunglasses with classic vintage styles -- never mass produced. These shades are also Rx-able, offer 100% UV protection, and are shatterproof. Each style is produced in limited quantities, providing a uniqueness inspired by rock n' roll and Southern California. Check out www.tresnoir.com for all 17 styles.

HURLEY

To celebrate their release of Hurley (the album), Weezer and Hurley (the clothing company) have teamed up with PacSun for a collection that embraces the indie rock darlings' music and own personal style. Available online and at exclusive PacSun stores, the line consists of limited edition Weezer inspired gear for both men and women. Included are t-shirts, wovens, and zip ups in a cool green and gray palette that's both casual and comfortable.

Purchase any of the Hurley and Weezer collab products between now and October 15, and get an exclusive download card with bonus content AND a chance to win a Weezer lunchtime show at your high school or college. Other prizes include signed posters, Hurley merch, guitars, and more.

