

I Have the Power:

And the winner for weirdest toy based on a horror icon goes to ... Funko's new "Savage World." It's a throw-back action-figure line, similar to the classic old-school Masters of the Universe toys (Savage World also has toys for Mortal Kombat and an upcoming series for Conan the Barbarian). Reimagining horror icons as goofy He-Man-style characters resulted in some interesting mashups. Jason Voorhees is now an armed warrior, complete with sword and bone-handled axe. Freddy Krueger is a hooded burn-victim with detachable claw weapon. Pinhead ... well ... he kinda still looks like Pinhead, while Leatherface has a blacksmith-esque vibe with interchangeable arm attachments (saw and hammer). Michael Myers is fairly simple as well, with two knife/daggers.

How Cute:

Because they've already produced toys of every major horror icon, Funko is taking a turn at adding these killers into their super-cute 5 Star toyline - Freddy, Chucky, Pennywise, and Jason. Look for them in stores this November.

Aliens Don't Just Fall from the Sky!

It's slightly unfortunate that Eaglemoss has all but given up on their Walking Dead figurine collection, but it seems as though they've picked up the slack in regards to Alien and Predator merch. Some of their latest reveals include Burke from Aliens (in stores this December with an SRP of $29.95), "Jeri the Synthetic" from the Alien comics (December, $29.95), Dillon from Alien3 (January, $29.95), "Top-Knot" Predator from AP War (January, $29.95). An oversized Ripley in the P-5000 Power Loader is also set for release this September and will carry a retail price of $79.95. A mega-statue of the Alien as seen in the film Alien3 is also due in September, with an SRP of $149.95.
