CD Review: Human Consumes Human by Homo Iratus

Yes folks, it is metal time here at Blogger News. But these guys are not your regular metal band, they are more like the soundtrack to some sleazy B horror movie. Oh, don't be put off by that, it is meant as a compliment. This band pushes the envelope, and I bet they put on a great live show.

Homo Iratus was formed in 1998, and Human Consumes Human was first recorded in 2001. It is very much what I would refer to as 'Death Metal', there is nothing light and airy about it, although they do also stray into a little grunge here and there.

What I found interesting is their country of origin. How many Greek Metal Bands can you name? This could earn you big bucks taking drunken bets at parties!

I have to admit that I was not keen on the constant use of the 'Morgue Synth' (pun intended) that the lead vocalist seems to use on a constant basis. Special effects, are just that, use them for special effects, not as a constant, they lose their effect rather quickly.

For the 'Death Metal' fans this might be an interesting addition to the collection, but I doubt they would give it many spins.
