RHINO BUCKET: The Hardest Town

After what turned out to be an extended hiatus, Rhino Bucket, Reeve Downes, Liam Jason, and Brian "Damage" Forsythe, joined by former AC/DC drummer Simon Wright, once again deliver their distinct brand of three-chord boogie rock 'n' roll unlike any other on their latest release, The Hardest Town.

"Three chords and a cloud of dust" is how Rhino Bucket singer/guitarist Georg Dolivo describes his band's brand of blue collar rock. "Rock 'n' Roll is like a disease," he says. "Once you've got it, you're stuck with it. I've tried blues and country and all sorts of different styles, but I always come back to the rock. Maybe I'm just a one trick pony, but I really like the trick I know."

Rhino Bucket's "Welcome To Hell" is featured in the highly acclaimed Mickey Rourke film, The Wrestler. "We were asked to write some music for the movie Rolling Kansas," recalls Forsythe of their first soundtrack endeavour together, "and the more music we made together, it just felt right. Georg has an idea and starts playing some lick, someone will join in, an idea is born and we all jump in on it. It's this chemistry thing." www.acetate.com
