TV Party

This is basically a documentary of a cable access show that was co-hosted by Chris Stein whom you may know from the band Blondie and Deborah Harry is one of the people interviewed as a matter of fact. It was a really cool TV show where anything went and people could call in be utterly stupid. It was where TV had not gone before and where I think TV needs to go again. We need shows like that where people can be crazy and say things that go against the status quo. I think that's what I liked best about this show and we are living in a time where people need to be rebellious like that. They had all sorts of interesting guests such as Andy Warhol. I highly recommend this DVD. Maybe it will inspire someone else.
