Just in time for Record Store Day on April 20 will come the documentary based on Last Shop Standing, the book chronicling the struggle of independent music stores across the UK.

The 50 minute doc looks at the state of indie stores and how changes in the industry and consumer habits have created a new sense of community and a solidarity that has allowed these shops to survive (if not thrive) in difficult times.

The film also features appearances by many different musicians, including Billy Bragg, Johnny Marr, Fatboy Slim and Paul Weller.

If you're going to be out for Record Store Day, watch for the DVD.
