

LAST SHOP STANDING

"The Rise, Fall & Rebirth of the Independent Record Shop" DVD

This documentary was made overseas & sadly the movie is rather slow...it doesn't necessarily peak the viewers interest due to boring interviews & for the most part the movie tells the story of how most of the independent music stores overseas closed once people began downloading music on the internet. The ending segments of the movie show how some small stores managed to cling on once vinyl records became popular once more.

This movie is interesting yet the pace just made it a slow thing to watch & keep up with because the subjects being interviewed were just very boring.
