

All The Music That Rocks

News

Andrew W.K. Screens New Concert Film

January 27, 2006

Even if you haven't been able to party hard in concert with Andrew W.K., you can have the full-W.K. experience on the big screen. Andrew will be showing his concert film, Who Knows on Feb. 3 and 4 at the Pioneer Theater in New York City before its DVD release on February 7. W.K. will attend both screenings, keyboard in hand, performing live and signing autographs.

Fans who visit the official Who Knows website by Jan. 31 can win free tickets along with copies of the DVD before its official release date. Who Knows was filmed from 2000 to 2004 and includes both live footage and narration from the man himself. Andrew is hard at work on his third album, and two new songs -- "Kicks and Bricks" and "You Will Remember Tonight" -- are available on his official website.

Andrew W.K. official site

Get SPIN.com headlines for FREE on your mobile phone! Just text SPIN to 68423 to sign up. It's one message per day, Monday thru Friday, bringing you all the news that rocks, minus the carpal tunnel.