TOY DOLLS • Our Last DVD? • (2006 MVD)

Gery Vermin rates it:

TOY DOLLS
Our Last DVD?
(MVD)

Captured live before a well-oiled and amped Holland-dazed audience in November, 2004, OUR LAST DVD? offers 28 hellbent ditties from Britain's asinine answer to The Dickies. Supporting OUR LAST ALBUM? and to a kazoo-huffed intro of Europe's "The Final Countdown", main harebrain Michael "Olga" Algar bursts forth and mercilessly spurs his newly-inducted, corpulent bandmates Tommy Goober (bass "and a bit o' singin") and Dave The Nut (drums "and a bit more singin") into action - rocketing through assorted Toy Dolls classics ("Dig That Groove Baby", "Yul Brynner Was A Skinhead", "Olga I Cannot", "I've Got Asthma", "Tommy Kowey's Car") and peppering them with gutbustingly choreographed stage moves. Rousing and blursomely brilliant instrumentals include "Tocatta", "Sabre Dance", "Boccherini Bit" and spleen-squeezing, acoustic ravaging of "The Entertainer" - all great, but leaving "The Death Of Barry The Roofer With Vertigo" as the sole new track to be shoehorned into the 25-year-spanning setlist. "Nellie The Elephant", "Glenda And The Test Tube Baby" and "She Goes To Finos" winds things down in an ironically full-bore, wound UP fashion, leaving me crammed with hopes that Olga will recant on his decision to put the Dolls into storage. Extras include a 45-minute, historical recitation/interview with Olga, 36 minutes of on-the-road and practice pad footage, a "120 Second Tour Photo Album" and band biography.
