THE DWARVES - FEFU DVD (Music Video Distributors) There is a lot more here than it sounds, so follow me on this. Mainly, it's the video for a (possibly my favorite) Dwarves' track, "FEFU" (off of the Epitaph Dwarves Must Die album). You get both the music channel version and the uncut version, where titties abound (thanks Suicide Girls!), as well as a 'making of' the video short. Then the extras kick in and we get the "I'm A Living Sickness" from way back in the day, a handful of interviews, and an hour of live material shot from LA to NYC and ranging from 1985 through 2005. Also on the disc are Dwarves' movie trailers and a short film by Long Island writer-gone-break-dancer Cassie J. Sneider. As I watch her shake it on the dance floor, I realize that she should really stick to writing. Oh, the movie was a trip, CJ just needs to takes lessons from the master. Yep, all fingers point to me - as usual. Figures I'd steer this review toward moi. One last word to HWCBN, Blag and crew... in Florida, if you hit someone, for any reason at all, they have the legal right to shoot you (H-0249 C1 & C2: The Hold Your Ground Law). So the next MRR mentioning the death of a Dwarves member won't be no prank. (Dec 15, 2006)
