

and discipline. "Autumn Leaves," for example, is a piano-based peak of majesty and soft thoughtfulness. It's really a lovely work and certainly of a high caliber. Beautiful, just beautiful.

— Todd Zachritz

Lloyd Banks – Rotten Apple
(G-Unit/Interscope)

Banks and the G-Unit crew come out swinging with a nearly triumphant opening title track but from there, and with a few notable exceptions, Rotten Apple is pretty ho-hum. The single "Hands Up" merits some acclaim for sure, as does "You Know The Deal," if only thanks to an appearance by one of the finest rappers ever, Rakim. Die-hard fans need this one, and Banks, et al has a deserved place in the background at a party, but for the most part Rotten Apple is riddled with worms.

—Benji James

Dwarves – FEFU: The DVD
(MVD)

Generally not known as one of the more tuneful (or tasteful) punk bands, yet ranking high in the attitude sweepstakes, the legendary Dwarves here present a superb collection of clips and historical videos. It's all centered around their latest promo video clip, which is wisely (at least for retail's sake) abbreviated as F.E.F.U. Utilizing the, eh, talents of some lovely Suicide Girls, the video is an over-the-top celebration of sleaze and perversity, of naked breasts, blood, and violence. Oh, and an undulating "little person," too. Cool stuff, and most assuredly a field day for feminists and the politically correct. In addition to a making-of presentation, the DVD presents a series of live clips from the 80s to today, some TV interviews, and an early promo clip that's more horror/deathrock-situated than their current hardcore permutation. The live clips are fraught with riots, fights, gratuitous nudity, filth, and good old-fashioned renegade rock with a capital ROCK. These guys embody the outsider punk spirit far better than any of today's self-important emo or post-hardcore acts, and their reckless abandon proves a good history lesson for folks unfamiliar with the group's outre oeuvre. I like it.

— Todd Zachritz

continued...

Lanhuck's

APA Pool League 4pm

SUNDAYS

PUNK ROCK

NIGHT 8PM

THURSDAYS WEDNESDAYS

MR. DOWNCHILE
AT 10PM

KARAOKE
10PM

FEATURING

JONAS COWAN

PRE-THANKSGIVING PARTY

DEAD WEIGHT
Nov. 22ND

WEEKENDS

BANDS START AT 10:30

CHELSEA MORNING
24TH & 25TH

PANACEA - 3RD & 4TH
AKACIA - 10TH & 11TH
NOCTURNAL - 17TH & 18TH

WHAT HAPPENS HERE

STAYS HERE

491-2222 321 E. COLUMBIA