Flipper working on new album with Nirvana bassist; DVD also planned

Contributed by douglas_is_rad. Posted on Tuesday, January 8, 2008 at 4:00 PM (EST)

Influential San Francisco noise/punks Flipper are currently in the studio with former Nirvana bassist Krist Novoselic and producer Jack Endino working on a new album. The band was formed in 1978 and reunited in 2005. Novoselic was asked to join in September 2006 after former bassist Bruno DeSmartass left. Since 2006 Flipper and Novoselic have been working on recording a new album, their first new material in 15 years.

According to drummer Steve DePace:

[The album is] 99% there, if not done. We've got 10 songs, and we just did another round of mixing. The album sounds great -- I think it's some of our best work ever. That also is an indicator for more future songs to come. We know we can write songs with Krist now that sound just like Flipper.

The band also hopes to re-release their entire back catalog sometime in 2008. The bands' first two albums are currently in legal limbo with producer Rick Rubin, and are largely out of print. In addition to the album, the band is currently putting the finishing touches on a new DVD. It is titled Flipper Live: Target Video 1980-81 and is due out February 19, 2008. You can check out the artwork on the DVD's release detail page.

Flipper released their last album, American Grafishy in 1992 before splitting up in 1995.

i saw flipper play the after party for the American Hardcore premiere a couple of years ago. Moby played bass with them on a song, and I was standing next to Steve Buschemi and Darly from the Bad Brains. it was surreal to say the least.

That's random as fuck. You sure you weren't on acid. Either way sounds awesome.

What label is it on?

Too bad the band took the original 2 Subterranean records from Steve Tupper/Subterranean & handed them over to the major label. Otherwise they'd still be in print & available. That's what they get I guess.

... and I'm saying that as a HUGE Flipper fan.

hm i'm skeptical... i'm a huge flipper fan but we'll just have to wait and see. I wonder if they'll tour (?)

Re: Flipper working on new album with Nirvana bassist; DVD a by douglas_is_rad on 2008-01-08 18:59:33

they've been touring on and off for the past two years, so I'm going to go ahead and guess yes.

Their last tour they played almost all new songs from this album and they sounded great.....a few mid-tempo ones similar to "Get Away" and a couple sludging slow masterpieces similar to "Sacrifice." Combined with "Bleach" style production and I think we're going to have a winner on our hands. The two times I have seen the band live in 2006/2007 were more intense and better than any of their early 80's videos I had seen.....and that's saying a lot since they were always a great live band.

I just put up an article about this along with some information about the producer who has done a few punk and metal(stoner type stuff).

It also has a track to download along with a couple of youtube videos.

Generic Flipper is a really good album. This thing about them re-releasing it I heard over 3 years ago, they said they were gonna do it that year. Don't bet on it.
