

Cracker & Camper Van Beethoven
MVD Visual
PO Box 280, Oaks, PA 19456
$19.95 www.mvdvisual.com www.pitchatent.com

In the 1980s the band Camper Van Beethoven was one of those bands that was often without a genre playing music that came before the indie rock explosion and the roots rock craze, but that would fit into either. By the dawn of the 90s the band had disbanded and singer/guitarist David Lowery formed the roots-influenced rock band Cracker. With hits like "Euro-Trash Girl," "Teen Angst (What the World Needs Now)," and "Low" the band became a hit on the Modern Rock radio charts while the line-up remained unstable. Lowery used time between recording and touring to produce acts like Joan Osborne and Counting Crows. This DVD documents a two-day festival that featured reunited line-ups of Camper Van Beethoven and Cracker as well as solo sets from Camper members Johnny Hickman and Victor Krummenacher.

- Eric Banister