MISSION OF BURMA The 2002 reunion of this legendary Boston art-punk band was an unlikely proposition, but if you listened to them play for just 30 seconds it was hard to believe they'd ever gone away. Since then they've decided to dig in their heels and stick around. On Obliterati (Matador), their second full-length in three years (but only their third proper studio album since 1982), they sound as restless and hungry as they did in the early 80s but informed by two decades of musical progress. In late November the DVD version of the Burma documentary Not a Photograph, which is packaged with some wonderful concert footage, hit stores, which seems to be the occasion for these dates. Pinebender opens. ➡ 9 PM, Double Door, 1572 N. Milwaukee, 773-489-3160 or 312-559-1212, $23, $22.50 in advance. --Monica Kendrick
