Mission of Burma Documentary Coming to DVD

Legendary Boston post-punks and Pitchfork Music Festival alums Mission of Burma have already proven their resurrected greatness, and now they will share the intimate details of their Lazarus story with the world. On November 21, MVD Visual will release Not a Photograph, a 70-minute documentary DVD about the band's 2002 reunion and the obstacles they had to overcome to make it the success it was and still is. Not a Photograph was directed by David Kleiler, Jr. and Jeff Iwanicki, and, in addition to the recent performances, it includes archival footage from the band's original incarnation, including a performance by the Moving Parts, bassist Clint Conley's and guitarist Roger Miller's first band together.

And don't forget-- as previously reported, Miller will share his next Mission of Burma tour diary exclusively with Pitchfork. The tour begins this Friday, September 15, at Seattle's Crocodile Cafe.

The Pogues Get Expanded Reissue Treatment

When the Pogues finished playing, you howled out for more. And, saints be praised, Rhino Records answered.

Now grab a pint or two and get ready to curl up all over again with the Celtic folk-punk band's first five albums, like you've never quite heard them before. Red Roses for Me (1984), Rum Sodomy & the Lash (1985), If I Should Fall From Grace With God (1988), Peace & Love (1989), and Hell's Ditch (1990) will each see an expanded and remastered reissue on September 19, courtesy of Rhino.

In total, the releases will feature 31 bonus tracks, including a cover of the Rolling Stones' "Honky Tonk Women" and four songs from the band's 1986 EP, Poguetry in Motion. Classic.

The Pogues themselves, meanwhile, take their patented drunken antics on the road this fall. [\[MORE...\]](#)
