

Stryper: Greatest Hits Live in Puerto Rico (NR)

MVD Visual

Whether you're a devout Christian or just a dude who loves hair metal, can we agree that Stryper holds a place in all our hearts? Clad in their bumble-bee yellow and black Spandex, Aqua Net-infused hair and righteous lyrics about a metalhead's love of the Lord, Stryper was a household name in the mid-'80s. Now the boys are older, sans Spandex, and have a more mature sound (and a much more fervent proselytizing style). But dammit, try to pretend that "To Hell With the Devil" and "In God We Trust" still ain't the glam-jams today that they were yesterday. You don't need to be a believer in Christ to dig this concert, but being a believer in kick-ass metal might help. — Louis Fowler

<http://www.csindy.com/csindy/2007-05-03/cinefiles.html>
