NEW RELEASE: Faux Fox "Nothing Gold"

It's not just a motorcycle drag race in this video for electropoppers Faux Fox. It's a metaphor for the battle of this country's soul between the truly rebellious and the blindly patriotic. Or maybe, it's just a motorcycle race. Performance takes place at the crossroads where the racer clad in the trappings of American imagery revels in the spoils that go to the victor. And, by victor I mean the director Victor Solomon, who has since signed with production company Propeller. --> watch "Nothing Gold"

NEW RELEASE: Kings Of Leon "On Call"

It's understandable if this first video from the new Kings Of Leon album Because Of The Times leaves fans a bit confused.

Gone is the rollicking garage sound, replaced by something a bit more modern that veers from spacey incantations to tightly compressed rock riffs. Not a bad song in any way/shape/form, just unexpected — in the same way that most of My Morning Jacket's latest album, Z, was a trippy departure from the blueprint they had forged over many albums. Also gone is the once defining backwoods image and swagger, replaced by something that just looks, well, a bit ill-fitting. Director Adria Petty employs a distinctly lo-fi '80s vibe here, focusing solely on performance in front of a dawn to dark backdrop. Should have been a good idea — especially since the band is pretty media savvy and rightly renowned for being an amazing live band. Unfortunately, none of the band members seem too comfortable here, especially singer/guitarist Caleb Followill, who looks like: a) his eyes were clamped open, b) Marty Feldman, or c) a deer in the headlights. --> watch "On Call"
