

Kenneth Keith Kallenbach
"American Icon" (MVD Visual)
by Paul Autry

Uh, who is this guy and who thought it would be a good idea to give him enough money to release a DVD? Luckily, I had a fresh pot of coffee made when I sat down to watch this release because it just about put me to sleep. I mean, seriously, this was flat out boring. There was a Superman skit that was pretty lame. Crank phone calls...lame. He was interviewing people on the street...again...lame. Actually, it was a bit funny when the one dude he interviewed had to clean up dog shit and he asked Keith if he wanted it. That got a laugh out of me. To be honest, he does have some decent stand up material. There's a clip or two on here of him doing most of the same jokes. They're not bust a nut funny. But, he does fire off a few good ones and I think he'd do rather well if he'd focus on stand up instead of doing those lame comedy skits. He also has a musical project, The Kenneth Keith Kallenbach Band. That was pretty cool. It had kind of a raw, punk feel to it. I'd probably dig his music more than I did this release. I don't know...maybe you need to be high to watch this. It might actually be funny if you're stoned. Since I don't do drugs, I guess I'll never know, huh? Maybe they should re-release this one and throw in a free joint in with the package. Might get a better response.
