

Chicken Little (Disney) 4 ribs.

Chicken Little was scared of the sky falling because it was only one piece of an acorn. I liked the dude because he goes “eep, eep boop” and I liked the big pig too. I liked the part when Chicker was playing baseball and the part when he saves the day. His dad is really funny too. The porcupine is funny because he said, “Woow.” I think little kids would like to watch this movie. Max Jordan

The Best Coup DVD Ever (MVD) 5 ribs-Eating Forever

Depending on how you look at it, The Coup were either ahead of their time or behind their time. With their incredibly profound lyrics, catchy beats and a revolutionary philosophy, The Coup never grew up and stayed above underground status. Based in Oakland, CA, the Coup formed as a three-member group in 1987 as a politically motivated outfit bent on exploiting capitalism, American politics and police brutality among other things. Rumor has it that the FBI even had a file on the group. At the helm of the Coup was Boots Riley, an activist with a trademark ‘60s-style afro and an axe to grind. DJ Pam the Funkstrapper and E-Roc backed him up. With the release of The Best Coup DVD Ever, fans finally get the chance to watch interviews with Boots, see many of the Coup’s best videos and witness “Eating Forever: An African Hip Hop Travelog.” While much of the mainstream never even heard of the Coup, the group was right on time for a handful of us who were waiting for someone to speak out. Will Jordan
