BLACK UHURU WITH SLY AND ROBBIE

Dubbin' It Live

MVD

You may recognize the names Sly and Robbie from the back of Fugees or Sting albums that they have produced, but before they got into that end of the business they revolutionized the reggae scene and took it into the dancehalls where it inspired people like Sublime, Long Beach Dub All-Stars, etc... in other words without these two people who knows if Sublime would have ever existed. With that being said, how would they be live after taking so much time off? In a rather smart move, they teamed up with the younger generations Black Uhuru for a tour and what transpired was another piece of history from Sly and Robbie. This DVD captures one of their many headlining performances from a festival in Switzerland while on tour in 2001. The performance is only 9 songs, but clocks in at over 1 hour long. With the perfect blend of grooves from bassist, Robbie Shakespear and the familiar reggae plucking of the guitars and keys ala Bob Marley you will absolutely be drawn into this performance. Simply put, this is the kind of music that makes you feel good about everything. Sly and Robbie certainly haven't lost it, and not only didn't they lose it, they may have gotten that much stronger as they grew older. This is a great performance, chalked full of energy that had the Swiss crowd bouncing along with the band. Wonderful DVD! (JK)
