Earth Day Celebration: A Reggae Tribute to Garnet Silk
By Brent Hagerman

This gathering of conscious-minded reggae artists to pay tribute to the late Garnet Silk was no doubt spellbinding but it's difficult to tell from this concert DVD. The sound is generally good (offered both in stereo and surround) and the performances are almost all spirited but the camera work is shoddy throughout, giving this film the feel of a home video. Almost exclusively shot with one angle from stage right, the uninventive lens work dulls the concert considerably, never putting the viewer there. Highlights include Turbulance and Aaron Silk but the thoughtless editing often chops songs in half, especially in the case of a phenomenal yet drastically trimmed set from Japanese scratch champion DJ Kentaro. Immaculate Machine - Fables

The title of this band's second album is quite inspired, as each of the songs, along with the cute album art, have a magical quality. What are you up to?

Pretty much touring and promoting the new record [Return of the Magnificent]. It's funny because most of my stuff never changes — I'm pretty much on the road 90 percent of the time promoting whatever I have out.

What are your current fixations?Read More
