

ULTRACHRIST! (Eclectic DVD/Leisure Suit Media): Jesus Christ (Jonathan C. Green) returns to modern-day Earth to spread his message of love, but realizes his approach is somewhat out of touch. So he dons a Spandex costume and becomes a superhero. It's not Martin Scorsese. It's not Mel Gibson. And it's definitely not for all tastes, but Kerry Douglas Dye's low-budget comedy has its funny (and relevant) moments as well as an extremely likable and sympathetic turn by Green as the modern Messiah. Don Creech plays God the Father - who rues the day he created earth - and Samuel Bruce Campbell plays the New York City parks commissioner, who happens to be the Anti-Christ. Appealing Celia A. Montgomery plays Jesus' love interest. **1/2