

by: Jan Boulder/Diane Chang/Joshua Glazer/Jason Newman/Jack Real

HIP-HIKERS GUIDE

You know your metropolis ain't truly happening if there's not a Time Out edition on the newsstands (Los Angeles being the exception that proves the rule), so when the alternative to the alternative gig guides puts out a DVD bible on the "other side" of their selected cities, you know that's where you'll find the art, music and mayhem that really matters. Each dual-sided disc comes with a music mix on the flip (Casey Spooner, Black Strobe, Damien Lazarus), so you'll have the tunes selected when jetting to New York, London or Paris. (www.timeout.com/other-side.com) JB

RIGHT HERE WAITING

Hot young people like to get high and fuck. But what if one gets high on smack and the other on Xanax? That is the probing question behind indie film East of Sunset. Set in Silverlake (L.A. hipsters, whut!?!), actress Emily Stiles has the best lips ever, and she frequents a bar where house band [the] Caseworker plays nothing but 25-year-old Tom Waits tunes as reinterpreted by Low. Forget szzzyrup, this is what real narcotics sound like. (www.eastofsunset.com) JG

UNI-TARDED

The big dudes that run this here publication are what used to be called husky in middle school. So we're gutted that the cotton kittens over at Cryin Tiger only make their excellent t-shirts in unisex sizes small, medium and large. Like us XL sporting Midwest kids might not want a t-shirt that tells the "Evolution of the Muff" spread across our broad shoulders. But I guess it has something to do with knocking down the gender lines, and I'd make an ugly chick — so go forth, oh skinny tees. (www.cryintiger.com) JG