BUGGIRL – Dirt In The Skirt

TUESDAY, 10 AUGUST 2010

(Impedance)

Wollongong pub rock erring on the side of bogan

It's an unusual name for a band, and BugGirl's style of music differs a bit from your usual pub rock. The brother sister duo take a no-frills, tell-it-like-it-is approach to their songs, and how it is apparently is big, dirty and loud with lots of lyrics about highways, trucking and sex. But mainly sex. Spread That Eagle launches the CD with big guitars, a fast rhythm and dirty lyrics. Dirt In The Skirt, Faster And Faster, and Hungry As Hell follow suit in much the same mould. Wasteland is a wailing lament about the state of the world. Shakin' Up Saturday has a traditional pub-rock sound, with great electric guitar and strong drums. Forget subtlety, BugGirl's screaming lyrics are all about the volume and the obscenities. Although they can't be faulted for their energy, I wouldn't recommend playing this in earshot of your grandma – she wouldn't appreciate it.
