3With their 2nd full length, Australia's Immolate have released Ruminare. Now, I

4generally don't like giving bad reviews as I know the hard work a band has to put 5forth to write an album, but I don't know if see any other way with this album. I was incredibly underwhelmed the whole way through.

At times they sounded like Motorhead and other like Queens of the Stone Age, but more like those bands being extremely bored and just going through the motions. I just didn't feel any "real" energy on the whole album. The vocals, and whatever filter they had on them, were very grating. As the album plodded along and pretty much the same tempo with songs sounding all the same it got harder and hard to continue.

Ruminate wasn't for me. The most interesting parts were parts that reminded me of other band's songs. Hot Heat started off almost exactly like I Hate You's Conviction. I got a kick out of that and Trap Me had a lot of Nirvana type riffs, but in the end I was general not impressed.
