LIVING COLOUR: 'The Paris Concert' DVD Due In November - Sep. 1, 2008

MVD/Inakustik has set a November 11 release date for the new LIVING COLOUR DVD entitled "The Paris Concert". A description of the title reads as follows: "For their millions of fans around the world, LIVING COLOUR needs no introductions: Vernon Reid, Will Calhoun, Doug Wimbish and Corey Glover are among the leading New York musicians who helped break down the doors leading to a renewed musical landscape in the '80s. They're one the very few groups — if not the first and only — that can be coined as authentic sons of Jimi Hendrix. This is obvious in the intense concert these masters of groove gave at the New Morning in 2007. A treat for all connoisseurs who are aware of the fact that LIVING COLOUR's groundbreaking music is the most impressive when it is performed in the intimate heat of a club!"

How all of that Black Rock Coalition just DIED about the time that NWA came on the scene. Not sure why. But there was a time there in the late 80's where there were a lot of black rock bands and many of them were really good. And there was a whole different feeling of integration within the music scene that vanished almost overnight. Again - why ? Nearly every band that I used to play in and with was mixed race. That was before OJ and the LA Riots coincidence or not. What a shame. Living Colour were the biggest of the genre. But check out the Bad Brains 'I Against I' and 'Quickness' if you want to really hear some awesome sounds.

I have also been a bit bummed that the many of the bands of the Black Rock Coalition never took off but many of the groups fell victim to: 1.) record companies still not sure how to market a Black Rock act even after the success of Living Colour. 2.) the Seattle sound hitting big! 3.) Really poor record deals signed by these bands. 4.) some radio stations flat out saying, "we already play Living Colour, they are our token Black rock act."...groups like Follow for Now, Eye and I, Maggie's Dream, Total Eclipse, The family stand, fell victim to one if not all of this...having said this there are a lot of Black/multiracial acts in rock and metal that have been moderately successful thanks to the internet, changing perceptions about what rock is and changing perceptions about race these bands include: God Forbid, Sevendust, Deftones, Skindred, Rage Against the Machine, Ben Harper and the Innocent Criminals, Whole Wheat Bread...

I love LC, amazing band. So many great songs, Flying, Type, etc. I really would have loved to have Time's Up on here, but no matter. Still an amazing band of really nice guys. The band goes out of their way to hang out with fans post-show Met Doug Wimbish on a connecting flight from Las Vegas (he lives in CT where I'm from), was totally friendly and as kind as could be. Great guys, hope for continued success.
