

<http://theblarg.wordpress.com/2009/06/01/eleven-dvd-reviews/>

“Living Colour: New Morning, The Paris Concert” – I first started listening to Living Colour in the seventh grade; that was 1988. For some reason, it took me almost fifteen years to finally see them perform live and, even though it took a long time to catch them, I’m glad I finally did. This disc captures a two-hour performance of Corey, Vernon, Doug and Will still rocking shit in 2007 in Paris at the New Morning. All the classic tracks are here (including my favorite, “Love Rears Its Ugly Head”) as are a few of their newer hits. And the whole thing was filmed in HD so, for those of you who own sweet-ass HDTVs, you’re in luck. Yeah, Living Colour may very well be reaching the 30-year mark of their career (they formed in 1983), but they can still put on a great show; this DVD captures exactly that.