Al Di Meola - One Of These Nights

Anonymous writes "Artist: Al Di Meola

Title: One Of These Nights

Format: DVD

Genre: Instrumental-Jazz-Classical- Fusion

Label: inakustik

Al Di Meola Website

Al Di Meola is a virtuoso without equal; I have always said that and will maintain that belief. He is unrivaled in his genre, a true innovator and legendary performer that certainly deserves to have more performances such as this documented to DVD. One Of These Nights is an exceptional video of high quality and sound.

*When he played in the super group Return To Forever he was the anchor on lead guitar. Once he took flight with a solo career, everything started to take shape. He has gone through many phases in his career. The heavy electric jazz fusion period was exciting and what many fans want to hear, if you are partial to that sound you will not appreciate this DVD. Jazz standards have a way of warming your soul. Any good vocalist that knows the tradition and culture of the music will let you to travel back in time without effort and become one with the music and its meaning. The only problem I can see developing during the course of recording is choosing the best songs for a particular vocalist. So why do they feel compelled to put out an entire album of covers? They do it because they love the music, to test their worthiness as a musician or vocalist, and because it is a right of passage in the genre."

DJ Monkey - Another Evolution

Anonymous writes "Los Angeles, California--April 8, 2005-- Due to their remarkable underground notoriety the dynamically talented DJ Monkey signed with 7 Records (New York and San Antonio) and will re-release their debut album, Another Evolution, this May. DJ Monkey cooks up a word-laced meal full of diversity, musicianship and professionalism that most artists overlook. Another Evolution unlocks the deeper thoughts of listeners by asking questions about society, politics, race and economics. At the same time, the music holds your attention, dares you to ignore its complex mix of poetry, rap and jazz-filled beats, and puts you right on the streets where it's all happening."

As Paul Jackson says-"It's All A Groove" baby, and man does this dude have his groove down. A founding member of the Headhunters under Herbie Hancock, Jackson help form a sound that propelled a new direction in jazz-fusion and funk music and he continues to forge his own unique path for jazz-funk bass playing innovation on his latest outing Funk On A Stick. This is the best possible title for this recording as its some of the funkier and slickest bass playing I have heard in quite some time."

Female Jazz Vocalists have home on WEB now!

Anonymous writes "I am happy to tell you that I am developing a dream of my life, web-site dedicated to female jazz singers. I am a long admirer and fan of this genre. My first website, www.hifigallery.com is dedicated to female jazz vocal in Japan. And the new one, www.femalejazzvocal.com is for all beautiful girls who make us mellow. Sorry for the design, I am bit color challenged, but the idea is that all of us can add singers, research on singers and hopefully we can teach our kids to love them too. And yes,

I hardly know where to start with this comprehensive recording. Over 71 minutes of pure jazz and absolute musical bliss are unearthed amongst the 19 tracks on Red Hot. This ambitious project from Ebony & Ivory, a marvelously talented group of musicians that came together to give us this magical treat for the ears, cover contemporary, classical, bluegrass, ragtime, Latin, nearly every genre, subgenre, or fusion thereof, and they are all instrumental delights. "

Goa's Jazz Junction for Bangalore

Anonymous writes "Goa's Jazz Junction has been invited to perform at the 'Jazz for CRY' concert organised by Radio Indigo in Bangalore on the 26th of March. The concert is being organised to raise funds for the child relief organisation CRY.

Jazz Junction was formed in Goa in April 2004 by virtuoso bassplayer Colin D'Cruz. The band made it's debut at the fashion meets jazz show L'affaire Xtraordinaire in Panjim. Soon after that the band made waves at the 'Down to Earth' jazz festival in Campal and has since performed at most of the major live music events hapenning around the country. The band was formed with a unique 'floating singers/soloists' concept where a different singer and soloist is featured at every performance. "

Al Basile's Jazz Sojourn

Anonymous writes "Artist: Al Basile

Title: Red Breath

Genre: Jazz

Label: Sweetspot

Website

Al Basile hits the sweet spot of jazz listeners with his excellent project Red Breath. Blues fans know him for his work with Roomful of Blues and previous solo work so this will come as a pleasant change. This album is a natural progression for the artist. His cornet playing and singing are exemplary and the vocals reminded me of Tony Bennett, very warm with plenty of emotion, tone, and just the right inflection to get the song across with style. "

Mike Di Lorenzo Gets Urbanized

Title: Urbanized

Genre: Jazz-Fusion

Label: Keep The Groove

Website

Mike Di Lorenzo plays the ivory keys with the passion and grace of modern day jazz magic man. He lets his fingers do the walking and all the talking on a beautiful instrumental recording called Urbanized. The title turns out to be appropriate. The artist explores the dynamics of modern day urban living through twelve fantastic trips down the jazz highway. It is a multitude of styles mixed together that would find a home in any jazz nightclub, city street corner or your own living room. A culturally diverse endeavor such as this takes a little bit of nearly every sub genre in jazz to bring to a boil a literal stew of sounds."
