

Ecstasy of Order: The Tetris Masters

Pitch: In Russia, oddly shaped blocks fall on you...

Why Rent? We've all played Tetris at some point in our lives. Different shaped blocks fall and increasing speeds, and the player has to move them into ideal positions below. The game was fairly ubiquitous for some time and still retains a popularity, and even those of us who were never particularly good at it still gave it a shot. Some folks though gave it far more than a shot and instead have dedicated their lives to playing. This doc looks at these people as they prepare for a world championship, and fans of the game will find some interesting observations. And maybe a few tips too... [Extras: Featurette, deleted scenes, trailer, full world record games]

Halloween 5: The Revenge of Michael Myers

Pitch: What exactly does Michael Myers need to get revenge for? Don't worry, the movie doesn't know either...

Why Rent? Picking up one year after the events of the dull turd that is Halloween 4 this new installment sees Michael Myers return to Haddonfield. Again. But while most of it is simply more of the same part 5 does add in something new and unexpected in the form of psychic connections, a mysterious man in steel-toed boots and a daring prison escape finale. It's pretty batshit insane at times and officially marks this as the Halloween franchise equivalent of Friday the 13th Part VII: The New Blood. It's just too bad the rest of the movie is so pedestrian and bland. [Extras: Commentaries, featurette, trailer]
