Now we're past Black Friday and the emphasis moves away from introducing new material to the video market and toward discounting older product. As such, the one new title that sticks out for me this week is Trek Stars Go West, a reminder that there was a reason Roddenberry pitched his "Forbidden Planet"-inspired outer space show as Wagon Train To The Stars: In 1965 Westerns ruled the airwaves as assuredly as contemporary procedurals do now, and Hollywood-based SAG members like Leonard Nimoy, William Shatner, DeForest Kelley and James Doohan could scarcely avoid appearing in them prior to the roles that made them famous.

See Nimoy work with Robert Redford! Shatner with Joseph Cotton! Kelley with Jay Silverheels! Doohan with Lon Chaney Jr.!

Anybody know if Nimoy plays a Native American in all three of his installments?
