Looking only at Live-action films such as The Cat in the Hat , you'd think the books of Dr. Seuss are better left to the page. But Chuck Jones has proved that animation, guided by a careful hand, is a fine way to bring the author's stories to the screen. Horton Hears a Who , directed by Jimmy Hayward and produced by Chris Meledandri, was a less than spectacular example of Theodor Geisel's work cranked through a bank of servers to create an animated feature.
