Unsolved

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 7, 2013 AT 8:49PM

Unsolved is a murder mystery in which college students are given the task of solving previously unsolved cases. The story centers around the Dean's daughter and her boyfriend. The two have chosen to try to solve a case, of a girl that was murdered at the University, but the closer they get to solving the case, they run into several obstacles.

The story line and acting are actually good, but the film comes off as more of a Lifetime movie than a legitimate horror flick. I was initially sucked in by the cover art, thinking it was going to be a horror flick, but instead all I got was a made for TV drama. Don't get me wrong there is some blood spattering, but for the most part, it was PG. All in all not a bad flick, just not what I was expecting.

Bottom Line: Not a horror flick by any sense of the word. A well done action/thriller, that seems to be made for Tv. It appears to be a college student film, which was done well, but a little too tame for me.

- Ragman is wondering if this one has made it through to Lifetime yet...
