Lou Rogai hasn't released any records as Lewis & Clarke since 2009's Light Time EP. But Rogai, who has previously worked with the likes of Bat For Lashes' Natasha Khan and Strand Of Oaks' Timothy Showalter, has not been dormant during his time away from the spotlight. This September, La Société Expéditionnaire will release Triumvirate, a 75-minute double-LP. Today Rogai teases music from Triumvirate in the form of A Map Of A Maze, a 12-minute short film by director Kevin Haus. It's a gorgeous piece of filmmaking that portends well for the album. Watch below.
