"Dawn Of Possession" was originally released on Roadrunner Records all the way back in 1991and the remastered edition comes to fans via Metal Mind Productions. It's a complex arrangement of powerful Death Metal that shows that you don't have to be from Europe or even Florida, but can hail from New York and still showcase incredible levels of power for fans of this genre. The band proves their strength on every track and is an example of brutal energy that stands strong alongside the likes of Nile and Behemoth in today's world and are to be commended on their early efforts on the genre. The band members Robert Vigna, Tom Wilkinson, Ross Dolan and Craig Smilowski showed the world that technical displays in this type of music could work very well and would allow the band to withstand the tests of time going forward. Considered a legendary debut, this is a must have release for anyone who is a fan today of bands like Cannibal Corpse and Decapitated. It is this influence that added to the genres appeal to the fanbase and on a remastered format comes through as if the band was performing in your living room. Tracks of note are "Despondent Souls", and "Those Left Behind". The remaster comes in a digipak edition and includes lyrics to the music. Check it out if you dare.
